

Licenses

Introduction

The Business-Oriented Boilerplate and GuideBook products are offered under two types of licenses. By choosing the appropriate license, you confirm that you accept the terms set forth in this document. Below are detailed descriptions and conditions for the use of each license:

- Standard License
 - Client Work License

1. Standard License

a) Scope of Granted Rights

- Right to Use: The user is granted a non-exclusive, non-transferable right to use the Products within their own projects.
- Modification: The user may modify the Product to adapt it to their own needs. However, such modifications may not serve as a basis for further distribution or resale of the Product as a standalone item.
- Integration: The Product may be used as an element of larger projects, provided it is not offered as a separate product sold or made available to third parties.

b) Restrictions

- Prohibition of Resale: The user is not entitled to resell or further distribute the Product, in whole or in part, as a standalone solution.
 - Prohibition of Sharing with Third Parties: The license does not permit transferring, lending, or making the Product available to other entities.
 - Purpose of the License: The license is intended solely for personal use and/or internal projects in which the Product itself is not directly monetized.
 - Copyright: All copyright for the original Product remains the property of FlyUp. Any modifications, although they may be used within projects, do not transfer copyright.

2. Client Work License

a) Scope of Granted Rights

- Right to Use: The user is granted a non-exclusive, non-transferable right to utilize, modify, and adapt the Products within projects executed on behalf of clients.
- Integration in a Project: The Product may be incorporated into comprehensive solutions created for clients, provided it is not offered as a separate, standalone product.
- Customization for Client Needs: The user has the right to modify the Product to tailor it to the specific requirements of a project executed for a client.

b) Restrictions

- Prohibition of Standalone Resale: The license does not authorize the sale, sharing, or further distribution of the Product as a separate item, regardless of any modifications made.
 - Retention of Copyright: Despite modifications and adaptations, the copyright of the original Product remains the exclusive property of FlyUp. Any solutions based on the Product do not need to include information about the source and the license.
 - Scope of Use: The license is limited to projects executed on behalf of clients. Any use of the Product outside the direct project commissioned by a client requires obtaining appropriate consent from FlyUp.

3. Final Provisions

- License Selection: The choice of the appropriate license is binding at the moment of purchase of the Product. Using the Product under conditions other than those specified in the chosen license will be considered a violation of these terms.
- License Modifications: FlyUp reserves the right to introduce changes to this licensing document. All changes will be published on the FlyUp website and will take effect from the date of publication.

- Protection of FlyUp's Interests: In the event of a violation of the license terms, FlyUp reserves the right to immediately suspend access to the Product and to pursue claims for damages resulting from the infringement of copyright and other applicable laws.
